SPAVIN CURE

Wm. Larsen, Manager,

NOVELTY LEATHER COMPANY
412 Market Street
San Francisco, Cal.
Dear Sir:—I used your "Save-the-Horse" on two Splints, on inside of front legs, interfering with the cords of the leg and causing lameness so badly that a very short drive would make the horse act the "part of a cripple." After using two bottles the lameness is gone and the splints disappeared entirely.
Yours truly,
WM. LARSEN.

I treated my horse, which had a bad bone spavin, with "Save-the-Horse," and it entirely removed the blemish. I never saw anything to equal it. Mr. Chas. Welby and several horsemen, who are friends of mine, tell me they had equally as good results as myself.

Costs from $5 to $25 for repeated firing, horse must be laid up for several months; not 5 per cent. of the cure are cured. Blistering is less effective. Mercurial preparations produce irreparable injury.
"SAVE-THE-HORSE" eliminates all these factors. Cures without sear, blister or loss of hair.
Positively and permanently cures Spavin, Ringbone, Thoroughpin, Curb, Splint, Capped Hock, Wind Puff, broken down, bowed or strained tendon or any case of lameness. Horse can be worked as usual and with boots, as no harm will result from scalding of limb or destruction of hair, per bottle, with a written guarantee, as binding to protect you as the best legal talent could make it.

The ancients used the rush light. Since then many other methods of lighting have been used until the electric light was invented. The advent of the electric light has relegated all other lights to the background. It is the efficient, safe, odorless illuminant that should be in every home.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL
HEARD FROM
ON ROSE HART CASE

The following communication has been received from Mrs. Sarah Dexter, matron of the Girls' Industrial School, bearing on the sociological question raised by the case of Rose Hart and other little girls, which has excited some attention during the past few days:

Palama, Nov. 16, 1906.
Editor Evening Bulletin:—In the Bulletin of this evening we read with much interest your description of "Twelve-Year-Old Rose Hart." You recite the particulars of her capture and detention in the police station. You also give an imaginary description of life in the Girls' Industrial School. You certainly can know very little regarding the school, as never a reporter from your paper has been inside the gates for the last two years and ten months. You say little Rose has a drunken father and their home is only one room. Is it possible for Rose to learn anything, even in the police station, more than she has seen and heard in the one-room home with a drunken father and his companions?

We also strongly object to your remarks that Judge Whitney is anxious to avoid sending her to a place where she is much more liable to be made worse than better. Another chance for what? To become worse before he has finally to commit her here? And by so doing ruin the child's morals and health. We cannot believe Judge Whitney thinks with you of this school.

Yes; there are big doors and strong locks and strict rules that must be obeyed. There are also true friends with kind hearts and willing hands to dress their rotten sores and nurse them back to health and teach them to be good and useful women. Yes; little Rose will have to do all sorts of things. She will have to keep her head and body clean and wash and iron her own clothes; also make them. She will have to make up her little white bed every morning and do it well, assist in washing up the floors for every room in the school is washed every day; also help keep the yard in order. At 8:45 a. m. she must have herself in perfect order and be in line to march to the school room, there to remain till 12:15 p. m. She will then have dinner, a good, plain, healthy meal with a nice white tablecloth and clean dishes and knife and fork. At 1:30 p. m. she will go to her sewing, lace, fancy work or weaving class. At 4 p. m., she will have her bath; she can then play till 4:15, her supper at 5 p. m. and at 6:15 she must again be in line to go to school room to study till 7:15; then to dormitories, undress, prayer, and retire. One of the teachers remains with children till all are quiet. The teachers sleep in dormitories with the children. They are constantly with the children. The teachers are young Hawaiian ladies and fully realize their responsibilities. If you will take the trouble to visit the school we shall be pleased to show you around and give you all the information possible.
